CENTENE RECOGNIZED WITH INNOVATION AWARD FOR HEALTH EQUITY

ST. LOUIS, March 21, 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- Centene Corporation (NYSE: CNC) ("Centene") announced today it has been awarded the Innovation Award for Health Equity by the National Committee for Quality Assurance (NCQA). The award recognizes Centene's data-driven Health Equity Improvement Model for being a leading-edge strategy for improving health equity and healthcare quality through innovative and creative solutions.

Centene's four-step Health Equity Improvement Model features a public health framework that integrates quantitative and qualitative data to help identify barriers and design initiatives across community, member, and provider levels. The model was successfully implemented in multiple markets across the enterprise, resulting in reductions in Healthcare Effectiveness Data and Information Set (HEDIS) disparities, including:

- improved colorectal cancer screening rates for American Indian/Alaska Native members with Arizona Complete Health
- improved rates of immunizations for Latino child members with Nevada's SilverSummit Health Plan
- improved maternal health outcomes among African American and Black members with California's Health Net.

"Advancing health equity has a real and positive impact on the health of our members across the country," said Sarah Bezeredi, Senior Vice President and Chief Quality Officer for Centene. "We are honored to have Centene recognized for implementing these leading strategies that continue to improve the value of our high-quality, affordable care, and we remain committed to addressing these challenges for all our members and communities."

Rooted in Centene's purpose to transform the health of our local communities, the Health Equity model is focused on community engagement and leverages the voices of community coalitions to align strategies throughout the process. The data-driven approach uses community feedback and trusted messengers to design initiatives to improve member lives and promote health equity across the United States.

"By using a data-driven process, we are identifying disparity reduction opportunities and tracking performance and success year-over-year. This informs our efforts and strategies for creating community-specific training, outreach, and social determinants of health (SDOH) integration interventions so we can serve our communities, members, and providers with the highest quality of equitable care," said Bezeredi.

Given the success of the model, Centene plans to implement its Health Equity Improvement Model across the enterprise.
